International Level Crossing Awareness Day (ILCAD) on 7 June 2012

“Level crossings represent a very specific road safety topic and a holistic strategy must be defined in order to evaluate and effectively address risks. Such a strategy must be based on shared responsibility and strong engagement from the railway safety community, the road safety community, as well as other interested parties. We must use of all the available information and international activities such as ILCAD to ensure that individuals have the proper information that enables them to use level crossings safely.”
